The statistical reports of the Treasury department support the comment upon the bicycle as a novelty that has lost some of its power to amuse. Four years ago, when bleyeling was becoming the most fascinating diversion for the whole world, and when the United States found it profitable to undertake to contribute to the demand for wheels outside of this country, we exported to the rest of the world bicycles and parts of bicycles valued at $1,898,012. The lemand had increased so greatly that in the next year we sent abroad wheels valued at $7,005,223. The height of the "craze" seems to have been reached then, for the exports fell in 1898 to $6,846,525, to $5,753,880 in 1899, and dropped to $3,551,025 in 1900.

An excellent fluid cement for fastening tires to rims is made by pulverizing hard red cement, placing it in a wide-mouthed bottle and covering it with benzine. Let t stand for a few hours, shaking it occasionally, until the cement is entirely dissolved, when it is ready for use. Clean the rim with a cloth dampened in benzine, apply a heavy coat of the cement with a brush, meisten the rim side of the tire with benzine, put it on the rim and pump up. Keep the bottle rightly corked when not in

When a valve stem is cut by friction on the edge of the rim, or otherwise, it may be repaired by using small rubber bands Cover the valve stem with rubber cement. filling the cut thoroughly, then wrap the rubber bands tightly around the stem until they fill the cut and extend for a quarter of an inch on either side of it, applying cement with each band. If the cut is not a had one, this method will effect a permanent repair, though, as a rule, a damaged valve stem should be replaced by a new one as a matter of precaution.
